Her practice focuses on sports-related transactions and arbitration.

Maidie has developed a multi-faceted practice including work related to Olympic transactions and compliance, US and international sports arbitration, transactions for television and streaming rights, naming rights, sponsorships, and event-related rights for single sport and multi-sport domestic and international events, professional and collegiate; acquisitions of sports events and/or clubs; and trademark protection.

Maidie is recognized as a leading sports attorney by Chambers USA and Legal 500. As noted in Chambers USA, "Maidie is praised as a "commercial and practical" attorney with wide-ranging experience in numerous areas of sports law." One client describes her as "absolutely fantastic," explaining that "she understands the industry well, and can educate us on the legal and practical issues," and another notes that "she knows our business inside and out." According to Legal 500, clients call on Maidie for her "deep sports law experience" and note she "instills confidence in decision making."

Since May 1997, she has served as an arbitrator on the Court of Arbitration for Sport (CAS). In addition, Maidie is on the panel of the American Arbitration Association (AAA) and International Center for Dispute Resolution. She has acted as an arbitrator in international AAA cases as well as numerous cases brought under the US Anti-Doping Agency protocol and the US Olympic & Paralympic Committee Bylaws.

Representative Work

Maidie has worked in the sports industry for more than 30 years. She has negotiated and/or administered hundreds of transactions, including:

- Counsel Intel in connection with various sports rights transactions, including its worldwide partnership agreement with the International Olympic Committee and promotional rights agreement with the National Football League.

Conduct review and assessment investigations for the United States Olympic & Paralympic Committee of compliance by national governing bodies with their own Bylaws, the Ted Stevens Olympic and Amateur Sports Act, and the USOPC Bylaws.

- Counseled Under Armour in connection with various sponsorship relationships with pro leagues and colleges.
- The successful bid by the New Orleans College Football Host Committee, and its member, the Sugar Bowl, to host the College Football Playoff national championship game in 2020 and the Sugar Bowl's hosting of the College Football Playoff semifinal game every four years.
- The negotiation of Sugar Bowl's sponsorship agreements and various game-related issues. The Sugar Bowl's participation in the Bowl Championship Series (BCS) format, and its title sponsorship deal with Allstate (and previously with Nokia and USF&G).
- Big Ten Media Properties' sublicense of the media rights to the Big Ten Conference's sports events, for $2 billion-plus, to ESPN, CBS and FOX. This included the drafting of the media rights agreements taking into account the complex media market, multiple telecasters, and sports, as well as the negotiations with the counterparties.
- Acting as Pro Bono General Counsel for the successful Special Olympics World Summer Games held in Los Angeles in 2015, dealing with all legal matters for the Organizing Committee, from the bid to the hosting of the Games, such as the grant of telecast rights to ESPN, sponsorship and venue agreements and all major event-related issues
- Epson America's major September 2015 promotion "Swimming in Ink" in Times Square, New York, featuring the U.S. Synchronized Swim team.
- CineSport's sale of its leading sports video digital network to One Up.
- The acquisition of multiple endurance events by Southland Events LLC.
- Epson America's negotiation of endorsement agreements with celebrities for its Pulsense™ product.
- Tampa Bay Lightning's long-term exclusive media rights agreement with the Fox Sports-owned Sun Sports regional sports network.
- The acquisition of the BNP Paribas Open, the most attended tennis tournament in the world outside of the four Grand Slams, and the 55 acres of the Indian Wells Tennis Garden.
- Seiko Epson's worldwide sponsorship of the English Premier League club, Manchester United.
- Numerous NHL Enterprises sponsorship-related transactions.
- Matters involving the United States Olympic & Paralympic Committee and multiple compliance-related sport governance investigations.
- The original Oracle Park naming rights agreement (formerly AT&T Park, SBC Park, and Pacific Bell Park), home of the San Francisco Giants, on behalf of Pacific Bell.
- CineSport's agreements with numerous local media affiliates and content licensors.
- The Detroit Pistons and Oklahoma City Thunder's grant of telecast rights to their local regional sports networks.
- The Tennis Channel's acquisition of rights to two Grand Slam tournaments, Roland-Garros and the related media rights agreement with the French Tennis Federation, as well as the US Open and related transactions involving ESPN.
- AstraZeneca and its CRESTOR brand sponsorship of the PGA Tour.
- Numerous professional athletes' matters, including for Arthur Ashe, Stan Smith, Tracy Austin, Mitch Kupchak, and Tai Babilonia.

In 1990, Maidie established LawSports, a boutique firm in Los Angeles. Prior to founding LawSports, Maidie was senior vice president and general counsel to DelWilber + Associates (DWA), where she administered sponsorship contract commitments and handled the general legal affairs of DWA. She came to DWA from the Women's International Professional Tennis Council (now the WTA Tour) where she was its managing director. Prior to that, she was part of the team that organized the Los Angeles Olympic Games in 1984.

Professional Activities

Maidie is on the Board of Directors of the Sports Lawyers Association, and the editorial board of the American Bar Association's (ABA) Entertainment and Sports Forum. She is also a frequent contributor and speaker to conferences in the business of sports and entertainment, including the Sports Lawyers Association annual conference, the ABA's Entertainment & Sports Forum, the Court of Arbitration's periodic Seminars and various other law schools and conferences. She also serves on the Advisory Board of the Los Angeles Sports & Entertainment Commission and sits on the Board of Advisors of the National Sports Law Institute.

Maidie was appointed as one of 12 arbitrators worldwide on the ad hoc Division of the CAS during the Olympic Games in 2012 in London, 2004 in Athens and in 2000 in Sydney, where she was on the panel of arbitrators which decided the controversial case involving the Romanian gymnast, Andreea Raducan, who lost a gold medal after testing positive for pseudoephedrine, a common cold medicine. She was also appointed as one of nine arbitrators worldwide on the ad hoc Division of the CAS during the Olympic Winter Games in 2002 in Salt Lake and in 2006 in Turin.

Life Beyond the Law

Maidie was a member of the Board of Directors of the 2015 Special Olympics World Summer Games Organizing Committee, which successfully held the privately financed largest sports and humanitarian event in Los Angeles in 2015.

She speaks fluent French with native capability and understands several other languages. She is very fond of outdoor activities, participates in triathlons, and is a frequent hiker and swimmer.
